Indian equity indices ended lower for the second day in a row in a volatile session on June 9 amid selling seen across the sectors, barring capital goods and power. The 30-pack Sensex shed 223.01 points or 0.35 percent to close at 62,625.63, and the Nifty was down 71.10 points or 0.38 percent at 18,563.40. After a flat to positive start, the market remained in the green for the first couple of hours, meanwhile, profit booking in the second half dragged the indices to the day's low.

Shares of Schneider Electric Infrastructure slumped 4 percent on June 9 after the company announced the resignation of Sanjay Sudhakaran, who is the heavy electrical equipment maker's Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer. At 11:32 am, shares of Schneider Electric Infrastructure were quoting at Rs 241.55, down 1.63 percent. It was trading with volumes of 105,967 shares so far on June 9, as compared to its five day average of 53,634 shares, an increase of 98 percent.

Shares of SpiceJet jumped 5.5 percent in early trade on June 9 after the company announced that it will induct 10 Boeing 737 aircraft from September. The airline has signed a lease agreement for 10 Boeing 737 planes, including five 737 Max. The low-cost airline is actively engaged in the restoration and revival of its grounded aircraft, which are expected to be back in service soon. Ajay Singh, the chairman and managing director of SpiceJet, had mentioned in an interview with CNBC-TV18 in April that the airline has plans to revive the grounded fleet within the next two to three months. Singh had pointed out the increasing demand and shared hopes that it will last till the year-end. The Monetary Policy Committee has maintained the repo rate unchanged at 6.5 percent in its bi-monthly review, while continuing to keep a close vigil on the evolving inflation and growth outlook.

Sun Tzu Quotes: Lessons From The Art Of War (part- I)

By Steve Burns

A very interesting and relevant article for the modern times business. Ancient wisdom often holds relevant lessons for our modern lives. One such source of profound insights is Sun Tzu's 'Art of War', a masterpiece not confined to the battlefield. This classic is a treasure trove of strategies that can illuminate our path in business and investing helping us navigate challenges and seize opportunities. Let's delve into some poignant Sun Tzu quotes and explore how they can be our guiding principles in the financial markets, fostering success in today's cut-throat business world.

We have taken this article from

Sun Tzu Quotes On Strategy

"He Will Win Who Knows When To Fight And When Not To Fight."

For businesses, this quote resonates as a call for strategic patience and discernment. A company that pounces on every opportunity or challenge risks spreading itself thin. It also applies to investors and traders waiting for the right setup. It's more fruitful to carefully pick battles – those that align with core strengths and objectives. That's how businesses ensure their resources aren't wasted, thus enhancing their winning chances. The same goes for investors and traders to wait for the right timing and market environment to make buy and sell decisions.

“Victorious Warriors Win First And Then Go To War, While Defeated Warriors Go To War First And Then Seek To Win.”

A victorious business, much like a victorious warrior, understands the importance of meticulous planning. Before launching a product, service, or initiative, the winners have already calculated the potential for success. Conversely, those who rush headlong into ventures without adequate planning often scramble to salvage a win from their ill-prepared endeavors.

“If You Know The Enemy And Know Yourself, You Need Not Fear The Result Of A Hundred Battles...”

The full quote:

“If you know the enemy and know yourself, you need not fear the result of a hundred battles. If you know yourself but not the enemy, for every victory gained you will also suffer a defeat. If you know neither the enemy nor yourself, you will succumb in every battle.”

This profound quote from Sun Tzu’s “The Art of War” encapsulates three crucial principles:

1. Self-knowledge and Awareness of the Adversary: This first principle advocates a complete understanding of both your own strengths and weaknesses and those of your competitor or adversary. In business terms, this requires an intimate understanding of your organization’s capabilities, along with a thorough analysis of your competitors’ strategies, strengths, and vulnerabilities. The confidence gained through this dual knowledge can guide successful strategy formulation, leading to consistent victories.
2. The Danger of Partial Knowledge: The second principle warns about the risk of knowing only one side of the equation – yourself. In a competitive scenario, while knowing your capabilities is essential, ignorance of your adversary’s strengths and strategies can lead to unexpected setbacks, implying that each victory could be followed by a defeat.
3. The Peril of Ignorance: The third principle depicts the worst-case scenario where you are ignorant of your strengths and your adversary’s. This lack of knowledge equates to entering the battlefield blindly, increasing the likelihood of failure. In a business context, without understanding your capabilities and the competitive landscape, you’re likely to flounder, making strategic missteps that could ultimately lead to failure.

This quote emphasizes the value of self-awareness and competitive analysis. In the business context, knowing ‘the enemy’ equates to understanding competitors, while knowing ‘yourself’ involves grasping your business’s strengths and weaknesses. An informed, balanced view of both landscapes empowers you to craft strategies that exploit strengths, mitigate weaknesses, and outmaneuver competitors.
